The Murdock Murder.

[From the Bucyrus (Ohio) Democrat.]

Mr. Thompson was a small farmer of easy circumstances, living with his mother and a young sister about sixteen years of age, on the road leading from Tontogany to Portage, and three miles from the Pemberton road. On the day previous to the murder, Thompson and Joseph Davis, who resided on the Pemberton road, were seen in Tontogany, and stayed at the store, where they were drinking together in the early forenoon, and about noon left the store. Davis went home, and upon Mr. Thompson opening it, he was found dead, with his throat cut from ear to ear, and in the center of the wound he had driven the knife he had used to do the bloody deed. The murderer had taken his wages and departed, and the only information we have received is that he was a stranger in the neighborhood, and had been employed by the month by Mr. Thompson. He was last seen on the road leading to Perrysburg, and it is supposed he has gone to Michigan. The murderer left his hat at the scene of the murder, which is a coarse straw hat, and is supposed to be about twenty-five years of age, and of medium size. He was dressed in blue pants and vest, and a dark frock coat. The murder was committed on Friday morning, October 26th, and the body was found by Davis about 10 o'clock A. M. Mr. Thompson was a quiet, peaceable man, and was highly respected by all who knew him. The murderer is still at large, and no clue to his whereabouts has been obtained.

Since the above was written, we have learned that Mr. Thompson was a man of considerable property, and that the murderer was a stranger to him, and had been employed by the month by Mr. Thompson to go with him to Michigan. Mr. Thompson left Mr. Davis's house on the morning of the murder, and told Mr. Davis that he was going to Michigan, and that he had employed a man to go with him, and that he was to meet him at the store, after which he went with the stranger by the way of Tontogany, and ordered out and shot the deed. He had about $1,000 in money with him. The stranger left Tontogany on the road leading to Perrysburg, and it is supposed he has gone to Michigan. The murderer is described as a man about five feet eight inches high, with dark hair, dark eyes, and dark complexion, and wore a dark frock coat, dark pants, and a dark hat. He had a valise with him, and carried a cane. He is supposed to be about twenty-five years of age.
